Selective Draft Lottery Tuesday Decides Order Army Training

The first number drawn in the national selective lottery Tuesday was 158. This was followed by 192 and after that many of the numbers were higher than registered in the State's 31 districts.

About one man in 26 in Maine will be called; an average of about 100 in each district. The number of registrations in each district ranges from 1,710 in Lincoln County to 4,519 at Aroostook County's Local Board No. 2 at Caribou.

When local boards finish assigning order numbers to registration numbers, questionnaires will be sent out, which must be returned within five days. Men will be assigned then to one of four classification, from which they may appeal if they feel that they have not been classified correctly.

The first call for men will be for 30,000 and will be issued on Nov. 18. It is said that numbers drawn after the first 10 per cent will not be called into service this year.

Following is a list of those in this vicinity whose numbers were among the earlier numbers drawn. The first number (order number) indicates the order in which the serial numbers (second numbers) were drawn in Washington.

DRIVER UNHARMED IN GILEAD CRASH

Kernit Sweeney of Bethel escaped injury Sunday morning when the Oldsmobile coupe which he was driving left the highway and was badly damaged near the residence of Frank Peabody in Gilead. The accident was caused by locked steering gear. The car was owned by Lincoln Merrill.

Miss Carrie Wight is again confined to the house by illness.

MRS. MARY JANE CAPEN

Mrs. Mary Jane Capen passed away about 5 o'clock this Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Carter, on Elm Street. Her last illness was only of about 10 days duration, but she had been confined to her bed the past three years.

She was born in Bethel Jan. 6, 1847, the daughter of John and Sarah Ackley Abbott. She was educated in the town schools, and when 16 years old married Edward Capen of Bethel. Their married life was spent at the Capen homestead, near her birthplace. Mr. Capen died about 25 years ago.

Eight children were born to them, four of whom survive: Mrs. Laura Roberts of China, Maine, and Miss Minnie Capen, Mrs. Fannie Carter and Miss Alice Capen of Bethel. She also leaves a brother, Frank Abbott, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Gunther, both of Bethel, and a half-brother, Morton P. Abbott of Mechanic Falls; seven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at Greenleaf's funeral home Saturday afternoon at 2.30. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

GOULD 13, WILTON 0

Gould Academy returned to the win column again last Friday when they "turned-in" a fine job, after getting off to a shaky start against Wilton. The visitors were a scrappy team and Gould knew it had been in a battle when the game was over.

During the first half the teams battled on even terms, neither being able to push across a touchdown. Wilton did reach the Gould two yard line after recovering a fumble, but when they relinquished the ball they were back on the 11 for a nine yard loss.

In the second period Capt. Clough intercepted a Wilton pass in midfield and scampered 50 yards to put the home team ahead. His place kick for the point after was good and Gould led 7-0.

The second touchdown came midway in the final stanza. It was set-up first by a blocked punt by King which Irving Cummings downed on the 41 yard line. After a line buck failed to gain, Winfield Wight cut back off tackle, got through the line, reversed his field, and carried 40 yards to the two-foot line. From there Clough scored on the second line buck. The point after was blocked but the game was safely salted-away for a 13-0 final.

Fair Gifts

Riches, understanding, beauty, are fair gifts of God.—Luther.

Student Pilots Safer

A sober driver, who drives 60 miles an hour at night, is 20 per cent more likely to be fatally injured than student pilots at army and navy flying schools, according to authorities.

Prepare Ghost

An ancient custom of the Batkas of Sumatra is the preparation of a ghost for an important funeral. After a ceremonial farewell to the family and friends, the "ghost" is thrown into the river.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE question of who owns Dorothy Lamour's hair has become a burning issue. It isn't the hair that Dorothy had left when her famous long locks were removed, but the tresses that fell to the floor when she won the victory to have her hair bobbed. She bobbed it for Paramount's "Moon Over Burma," you'll recall. Instantly the studio's publicity department requested the make-up department to save the shorn locks; they knew that thousands of requests for a lock of Dorothy's hair would pour in.

The requests poured, all right. But when the head of the publicity department sent for the hair, the make-up department replied that it was in the possession of Dorothy's mother, Mrs. O. L. Castleberry. Mrs. Castleberry had protested bitterly against the shearing, and to appease her Dorothy had taken her long and lovely locks.

Now the question is—does the studio own those locks, or are they the rightful property of Mrs. Castleberry, who refuses to give them up.

Humphrey Bogart just goes from bad to worse, so far as his work is concerned. Years ago he made a hit in his first important role in the stage play, "Cradle Snatchers," in which he played the very juvenile escort of Mary Boland. Jeanette MacDonald's husband, then known as Raymond Guion, was another very youthful and capable member of the cast.

But the movies have turned Bogart into one of our most sinister villains. In his new picture, "High Sierra," he's more villainous than ever. One of his milder acts is to crack the heads of two "goons" who cause trouble in his "mob."

Radio artists are reviving an old parlor game as a means of whiling away off-time in the studios, but they play it with radio programs instead of the titles of books or songs. Turning to the radio page of a newspaper, they run the titles of radio programs together to make a story in sentences like this—"Blondie, Meet Mr. Meek, Light of the World!"

Marjorie Anderson is calling her new home on the outskirts of Philadelphia "The house that shadows built." Married, mother of a two-year-old daughter, and wife of a successful construction engineer, she commutes to New York for her work on Mutual Broadcasting System's Shadow program, and has earned enough to pay the rent for a year, landscape the grounds, and furnish the house.

ODDS AND ENDS—Bill Stern is lining up Robert Taylor, Mickey Rooney and Claudette Colbert for guest appearances on his "Sports Illustrated of the Air" if his program moves to the coast for December.

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

As I sit here thinking about church suppers, my mind wanders back several years to the suppers I attended in my old home town. There was always a feeling of congeniality, of hospitality and fellowship. The annual church supper was something that couldn't be missed.

Can you pass a table containing a tempting assortment of foods without wanting at least a taste of everything? Can you decide whether or not you want the coconut cream pie which is heaped with fluffy whipped cream, or the rich-looking chocolate cake with the thick fudge icing, when you know that you are entitled to only one dessert? Of course not! Instead of having such a wide selection of food for a covered dish supper, why not plan a well-balanced menu so that everyone gets exactly the same?

Hot Water Cheese Pastry.

(Makes 30 tarts)
1 1/2 cups shortening
3/4 cup boiling water
4 cups general purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups American cheese (grated)
Place shortening in warm bowl, pour boiling water over it and cream thoroughly with a fork. Place flour, salt, and baking powder in flour sieve and sift gradually into the creamed mixture. Add cheese. Mix thoroughly. Make up into dough ball, then chill in refrigerator. When ready to bake remove from refrigerator, divide dough and roll out. Cut into rounds and bake.

Tuna Cracker Pie.

(Serves 4 to 5)
1 tablespoon onion (chopped)
2 tablespoons green pepper (chopped)
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 can condensed chicken soup
6 tablespoons milk
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 can (7-ounce) tuna fish
Crackers for bottom and top of pie
Cook the onion and green pepper in butter until soft, but not brown. Then add flour and mix well. Add the chicken soup and cook until thickened. Stir in the milk. Add this to the cream of mushroom soup. Put the tuna fish in a strainer and pour a cup of hot water over it to take off the excess oil. Then add flaked tuna fish; heat to blend flavors. Cover the bottom of small casserole with crackers (round) and put tuna mixture into the casserole.

For top: 12 crackers
1/2 cup hot milk
Soak the crackers in the milk until soft. Then arrange crackers on top of pie and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Chocolate Fudge Cake.

(Serves 25)
1 cup shortening
3 cups light brown sugar
3 eggs (slightly beaten)
3 1/2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 teaspoons soda
3/4 cup sour milk
2/3 cup cocoa
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream shortening and add sugar gradually, blending well after each addition. Add slightly beaten eggs and mix well. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, and soda. Add to the creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Blend cocoa and boiling water. Add to the cake batter with the vanilla, and mix just until the batter is smooth. Pour into 3 8-inch square pans, which have been greased and lined with wax paper. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Macaroni and Cheese.

(Serves 90-100)
8 pounds macaroni
4 pounds cheese (grated)
2 1/2 gallons white sauce (medium)
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 1/2 cups butter
3 quarts soft bread crumbs
1. Cook the macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and rinse in cold water.
2. Grate the cheese, and add to white sauce, with the mustard.
3. Combine the macaroni and the cheese sauce. Place in greased baking pans.
4. Melt the butter and mix lightly with the crumbs. Sprinkle over the macaroni and cheese.
5. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Clam Chowder.

(Serves 50)
1 1/4 quarts carrot (chopped)
1 1/4 cups onion (chopped)
3 quarts potato (chopped)
7 1/2 cups celery (chopped fine)
5 quarts clams
5 quarts water and clam liquor
Salt and pepper to taste
5 quarts milk
1 1/2 cups flour
1 1/2 cups butter
1 cup parsley
2 tablespoons paprika
1. Chop the vegetables in small pieces and place in large kettle.
2. Chop the clams and add together with the clam liquor, water, salt and pepper. Cover.
3. Scald milk.
4. Make a smooth paste of the flour and water. Add half of this flour paste to the clam mixture and half to the scalded milk.
5. Cook each, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens.
6. Combine and add butter, parsley, and paprika. Serve very hot.

Tin Hats for 'Hot Seats'

The steel helmet has been put to many unorthodox uses, but surely the most curious use was made of it by airmen in the 1914-18 war.

Attacking planes then, as now, drove in from below and rearwards, and always the pilot was the main part of the target. It must have been a bright wag who figured it out first, but the idea spread like wildfire among pilots, when steel helmets were used to sit on. Results were grand. Not one casualty was reported through the "Hot Seat" type of wound (especially with tracer bullets), and airmen vowed the inventor of this stunt deserved a statue to his memory. Oh, yes, cushions were put on top of the helmets, too!

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, stress of care, and indigestion—tends to lay strain on the work of the kidneys. They attempt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizzy spells, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

"Jerry Conover," Gay's smile deepened. She leaned back against the leather upholstery, looking out across the dance floor where couples circled in a wash of artfully mellowed light.

"You called me up one day and asked me to take you dancing," continued Todd.

"Because he was magnificent in the sky but no use at all on a dance floor. And you took me. As I remember the subject of aviation was never mentioned between us. Not for six months, at least. Yes, all that's true," she added thoughtfully.

"We'd have something—" "A great deal. I'd try not to be too much in evidence. You could consider me a part of the landscape, until—"

"Todd!" she cried in soft protest. She turned to look at him, her eyes shadowed, thoughtful, a half-smile trembling across her lips.

The music had stopped. It began again, a familiar tune. A voice, meltingly tender, sang—

"Red sails in the sunset Far out on the sea—"

Their eyes met.

"Our tune. You bribed them to play it. When you spoke to the waiter a few minutes ago—"

"All's fair in—" He smiled with a twinkle in his hazel eyes. "Will you dance with me, Gay?"

In silence they walked to the edge of the floor. She slipped into his arms, so accustomed to his dancing technique that her position, her steps, conformed instinctively with his. They circled out across the floor, rhythmically, with practiced ease, moving as though they were one person, her red-brown head close to his blond head, her dress of cream-colored lace, stretched to crispness, as fragile as frost-work, a delicate silhouette against the black of his evening clothes.

"That's the way it is with us, Gay," he said after a moment. "No false starts, no stepping on each other's toes, no necessity for apologies."

"I'd rather dance with you than anyone. But life isn't all dancing, Todd."

"Dancing is a symbol. We understand each other."

Her head turned, drew a little away so that she could look at him. His eyes met hers steadily.

"There'd be sailing and dancing," he said gently. "Friends, a home, children, if you want them, friendship. They're good things, Gay."

"Very good things, Todd. But are they enough for you?"

"I told you. I'm contented." He smiled.

"You're a darling."

"Will you, Gay?"

"I'll think—I'll try—I'll see" . . .

Gay's evening wrap slipped from her shoulders, fell to the floor. She walked across to the desk between the windows. When you killed a thing, you killed it quickly. She seated herself, selected a sheet of note paper, drew the pen from its holder.

"John, darling!" The pen moved steadily across the sheet of cream-colored paper beneath the engraved address of her mother's apartment.

"We have hurt each other too much and too often. I love you. I have tried as you have tried, but trying does no good. I'm going to marry Todd, very soon, by the time you receive this, perhaps, we will have been married. He understands, as you must and will. There can be no peace for either you or me while we continue to fight something that is too big for us, something which we cannot alter or control.

I want peace for you, for myself. You will find it in your work. I will find it, eventually, in the life which Todd and I, together, will create. Don't be bitter or self-reproachful. I don't regret having loved you. You must not regret what has happened. Keep the memories of the happy times we've had and forget the others . . ."

The pen came to a stop. She read what she had written. It seemed adequate. There was nothing to add except her name. She wrote it quickly, folded the sheet of note-paper, enclosed it in an envelope, found a stamp. "Dr. John L. Houghton," Dr. Sargeant's address in Portland. Her writing was clear, each letter distinct and carefully formed. It betrayed no sign of emotion. She was glad of that. There was nothing to indicate hesitancy.

She glanced at the clock on the night stand beside her bed. Better to mail it now than to wait until morning. She rose, stooped, picked up her evening wrap. Standing before the mirror, she slipped it on, secured the fastenings with deliberation and smoothed back her hair. When she turned, she saw the letter, a cream-colored oblong on dark desk pad. She returned to the desk, stood for an instant holding the letter in her hand, then, moving swiftly and quietly, went out of the room.

The night doorman spoke to her at the entrance of the apartment.

"I'm going to mail a letter, William," she said.

"Shall I mail it for you?" he asked.

"No, thank you."

"Must be mighty important letter," he said, with a drowsy grin.

"Very important, William."

She went out through the door he held open for her into the quiet street. There was a mailbox at the corner. Her high narrow heels clicked on the concrete pavement. The air was balmy and smelled of the river. The sky was sown thickly with stars. The letter made no sound falling into the box, but the click of the lid against the slot when her hand released it startled her as though a shot had been fired through the night.

Walking back to the apartment house, saying good-night to the doorman, going up in the lift, she marvelled at her composure. Whenever, during the last three months, she had thought of making a clean break with John, she had anticipated the pain it would give her. Now that she had written and posted the letter, she felt only a sense of relief.

Had she gotten over it without being conscious of the process? she wondered as she prepared for bed. Nothing in the mechanical movements involved in writing and posting the letter had shaken her except the click of the mailbox lid. Her hand, as she brushed her hair, was steady. Her face, in the mirror above the dressing-table, was composed, thin as it had been all spring, the cheek bones accented, shadows under her eyes. No hint of the shattering emotion she had anticipated. She felt more tranquil than she had for months, physically weary, as though she could sleep forever.

She lay beneath a light coverlet in the soft narrow bed, her arms crossed beneath her head, looking up at the disk of light that the bed-stand lamp printed upon the ceiling. At some time, during the past three months, had she stopped loving John? No, not that—But had she accepted the inevitable? Had she been recovering all these weeks since she had returned from Maine? Had the decision she had avoided, finally made, brought tranquillity rather than the pain she had anticipated? She didn't know. She felt sleepy, blissfully released from tension and strain. She turned, pulled the lamp cord. Darkness pressed against her closed eyelids, heavy and soft, blotting out objects, smothering thought, quieting as an opiate, blessedly welcome. Her hand, moving to an accustomed position beneath her cheek felt heavy. She sighed, murmured and was asleep.

"Go on and pack."

CHAPTER XVI

Gay dropped down on a bench in Central Park and glanced at her wrist-watch. Ten minutes of two. Kate would have had luncheon without her, wondering where she was. Todd would probably have called. He had said last night . . . She sighed and put it out of her mind, her weary glance returning to the Park. So children rolled hoops again. Why did they combine pink geraniums with those striped green and dark red plants? Where did all the strange-looking people one saw come from? How long did it take a letter mailed at midnight to reach Portland, Maine?

Would he receive it in the late afternoon delivery today? Was there a delivery in the afternoon? Why hadn't she called the post-office this morning when she woke and realized what she had done? Wouldn't there have been time enough, then, to stop the letter? All sorts of red-tape, she supposed, and she hadn't been sure that she wanted it stopped. She wasn't sure now. In spite of the way her heart ached and the faintness which made her so weary, hadn't she done the right thing, the best thing for both herself and John? There was Todd, of course. But if he was willing to take a chance—

Strange how calm she'd been last night, dancing with Todd, half promising to marry him, writing that letter to John and posting it. She'd slept, too, deeply and restfully. It was not until this morning when she woke that she had realized what she had done. This morning—How long would it take a letter mailed a little after midnight to reach Portland, Maine?

The words she had written recurred to her. "We have hurt each other too much and too often." That was true. But the hurts they had given each other were not comparable to the suffering she was enduring now, to what John would suffer when he read her letter. She imagined him tearing it open in the hall of Dr. Sargeant's home, eagerly, because he loved her letters, anticipating in the envelope which bore her hand-writing, a momentary release from work which was, to him, uninteresting and exacting. Sitting on the park bench, she tortured herself by watching his expression change, seeing the brightness fade out of his face, his lips quiver with pain, the agony in his eyes . . . "I'm going to marry Todd, very soon, by the time you receive this, perhaps—" But she wasn't going to marry Todd, not very soon, not even as long as John lived and loved her, as long as she loved him with this aching intensity that throbbed with every throbbing beat of her heart. She was not going to marry Todd. That was settled the night she and Kate had arrived at the cabin, when John came in and she had watched his expression change from brusque inquiry to astonishment, to the soft and joyous radiance that had shone in his eyes.

But why shouldn't she marry Todd? She loved him dearly, in quite a different way. But wasn't that way more lasting? She might hurt Todd but he could not hurt her. There would be children, lovely blond children in DePinna play suits filling her life.

Why shouldn't she marry Todd? Two children ran toward her. One of them stumbled and caught at her to keep from falling. Dark eyes looked up at her from a thin dark face. Her heart gave a lurch. She smiled and started to speak, but the child raced on, beyond her, out of her reach.

A letter mailed at midnight—She could drive to Portland in ten hours or less. Leaving now, she would be there before midnight. Or she might drive as far as Boston tonight and go on to Portland in the morning. Her heart beat quickly, hopefully. She took a few rapid steps forward.

But John would have had the letter by then. Would he? She wasn't sure. And to go dashing up there would be a concession. He had not come to her here. They had parted, after the time she had spent in his mother's home, not entirely reconciled, a distance between them which both recognized but which neither had made an effort to close. If he loved her, and wanted her, he hadn't been able to leave, of course.

But now that Dr. Sargeant had returned—Gay's chin lifted above the scarf knotted at her throat under the jacket of her dark flannel suit. She wouldn't humble herself to return to Maine. She wouldn't. Why shouldn't she? Was it pride, false-pride, the wilful arrogance she had fought against, that was restraining her? Was it pride that, last night, had compelled her to half promise Todd she would marry him, to write the letter to John? Pretty stupid to let pride rob you of the thing you wanted more than anything in the world. Pretty stupid and obstinate to let something beautiful slip through your fingers because you were accustomed to having your own willful way—

She did not know when she made the decision. She was hardly aware that she had until she found herself running through the park to the nearest point at which she might hope to hail a cab, a tall beautiful girl in a dark tailored suit and a small bright hat, running along a paved walk beneath sun dappled foliage, running breathlessly, excitedly, to a cab, to Maine, to John.

Kate came out from the dining-room as Gay burst into the hall of the apartment.

"Where have you been?" she asked. "I waited luncheon for an hour. You're out of breath. Have you been running?"

"Yes, I've been running. We mustn't lose any time."

Kate dropped down on a love-seat in the hall. "What do you mean?" she asked.

"We're driving to Maine." Gay tugged at her arm. "Come! Pack what you must but not much."

"I'm not going to Maine. I'm going to stay right here and finish Anthony Adverse if it takes the rest of my life."

"Don't be silly. We're going to Maine."

"I went to Maine with you once and you know what happened."

"All right, then. I'll go alone."

"Wait a minute," Kate quickly caught Gay's arm as she turned. "What is this all about? You're the most head-long young lady I've ever known."

"I've got to go, Kate. I wrote John a letter last night breaking it off, telling him I was going to marry Todd."

"And now you want to beat the letter to Maine?"

"If I can. Anyway, I'm going, I told Suki to call the garage and have my car sent around. I must pack."

"Oh, Gay! And I've only my Pullman case here!" Kate wailed. "It's as big as a trunk."

"What does that have to do with my going to Maine?"

"Well, you don't think I'd trust you to go alone, do you?"

"Will you go with me?" Gay caught Kate's hand and gave it a squeeze. "Kate, you are a lamb."

"Nonsense!" Kate pulled her hand away. "Go on and pack."

"It's nice, isn't it?" Kate said as Gay turned the car into the street on which Dr. Sargeant lived. "They're elms, aren't they? Did you ever see so many, so tall?"

"It's nice now," Gay's eyes strained ahead for the square frame house which she had remembered was painted yellow. "When I was here in March it was pretty bleak. There was a blizzard."

"That must have been jolly," Kate regarded Gay's profile. "Aren't you glad I made you stay at that Inn last night? You look fresh and rested, though I still don't care for that hat."

"The house was yellow," Gay murmured, slackening the speed of the car.

"I don't see any yellow houses. Are you sure this is the right street?"

"I've written the address a good many times. Oh! Gay gave a little cry. "There are Nat and Skippy. This is the house. They've had it painted white."

She drew in at the curb, pulled the brake, shut off the motor. "Hello, Admiral Byrd?" she called.

Consumption of Cheese Shows Upward Trend

Americans are eating more cheese, says the bureau of agricultural economics. The upward trend in consumption has been especially noticeable during the past seven or eight years.

In depression years, from 1929 to 1932, the per capita consumption of cheese dropped slightly. Since then the trend has been sharply upward and last year it was 25 per cent greater than in 1930.

During the past five years the use of cheese has averaged 5.34 pounds per person, compared with 4.50 pounds in the 1925-29 period. In 1910-14 it averaged 4.28 pounds and in 1900-1904 the average was 4.04 pounds per person.

This upward trend in the use of cheese, the bureau points out, has been in contrast with the trends in consumption of many other staple food products. Consumption of butter during the past five years was about the same as in the pre-war years of 1910-14, but considerably less than in 1900-1904. In the past 40 years the trend in per capita consumption of meats has been downward.

By types, consumption of American or cheddar cheese has shown the greatest increase. From 1930 to 1937 the increase was 33 per cent.

ers in the United States will have the privilege of registering their preference—deciding which one of several men will hold the office of President for the next four years.

Election Day is not the only special day in our American tradition.
Not even Great Britain, with all its long history, has more occasions for genuine rejoicing, or for serious thankfulness than its ancestors were the men and women that they proved to be. But Election Day is certainly of primary importance to us as individuals and as a society.

In only a few lands on this earth does the act of choosing the head of the state have any real meaning at the present time. Even in England, there is small time for the exercise of representative government during the war emergency.
And on the continent of Europe, even when the rulers there decide to hold a parody of an election, it goes by a name unfamiliar to American ears—"plebscite"—and there is only one candidate's name on the ballot.

We Americans will show our wisdom if we ponder these matters well.

PLANNING!

(By George Ryan in the Boston Herald)

The future generations ought
To have a perfect clinch,
In view of all the things we've bought.

Their happiness to clinch,
They'll never have to worry much
For homes with garden plots,
For scenic roads and dams and such,

Or recreation spots.
For future generations we Have planned and planned and planned,

Unhampered by frugality
Or thoughts of cash in hand,
And pleasant schemes we've gam-balled through,

As happy as a pup,
So all they'll ever have to do
Is later settle up.

We've done an awful lot on tick.
It's really quite surprising How blithely we have turned the trick

Without economizing.
Yes, generations which succeed
Should find life a honey—
There's nothing much they're going to need,

Except a lot of money.

INTERSECTIONAL GAME

HERE SATURDAY

Football fans of Bethel are looking forward with interest to the coming football encounter which puts Gould Academy against its first out-of-state rival since football was inaugurated at Gould back in 1932. The visitors come to us from Newport, Vermont, where last year they made history with an undefeated State Championship team. They, however, lost heavily by graduation and are not so strong as last year. However the hosts are preparing for one of the hardest battles of the year.

The Gould eleven got back into the win column last week by a 13-0 triumph over Wilton, which greatly brightens their outlook. The local boys, thus encouraged, will be in there giving their all to set back their Vermont rivals.

The fact that Mr. Ireland, the new Gould principal, came to us from Newport adds considerable color to this affair. He will undoubtedly be watching this battle with mixed emotions but the team knows where his heart is and are going back into the game to "Win for Ireland."

The game Saturday will start a half hour earlier than usual so as to give the visitors an earlier start on their trip home. The time for the opening whistle is 1:30 p. m.

The Junior Class held a meeting for the purpose of making nominations for positions on the Student Council. The following were nominated: Alvena Lord, Elizabeth Gorman, William Robertson, Madelene Jordan, Emma Blake, and Irving Cummings. From these, four were selected to be voted on;
Elizabeth Gorman, William Robertson, Madelene Jordan and Emma Blake.

NOUS JEUNE FILLES

The Nous Jeune Filles club held a meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Sidney Dyke and Mrs. Charles Freeman, with ten members present.

Plans were made for a "Tramp Supper" to be held in two weeks, ending at the Methodist church.
Miss Florine Bean will be the hostess. A meeting will follow the supper at which time the officers will be elected. The nominating committee appointed is Mrs. Charles Freeman, Mrs. Donald Stanley and Miss Arlene Brown.

BANKING DEPARTMENT

CALLS FOR PRESENTATION

OF PASS BOOKS

The State Banking Department is now engaged in the work of verifying pass books of savings de-positors in the Bethel Savings Bank, Bethel, Franklin County Savings Bank, Farmington, Franklin County Savings Bank Branch, Phillips, Kingfield Savings Bank, King-field, South Paris Savings Bank, South Paris, Rumford Falls Trust Company, Rumford, Rumford Falls
Trust Company Branch, Dixfield, and the Wilton Trust Company, Wilton, and the shareholders' books of the Oxford County Loan and Building Association, South Paris.

The Statutes provide that this verification of pass books shall be made once in every three years and is in addition to the regular examination of all State Banking Institutions.

The Bank Commissioner has issued a call notifying all savings depositors and shareholders to either present their pass books, or send them in by mail to the above named institutions for verification.

In verifying these pass books a representative of the banking department will be stationed at the above named institutions, and will compare the pass books as they come in for the purpose of correcting any errors or omissions in the accounts.

As this work is done for the benefit of the savings depositors and shareholders, the Department should have the cooperation of every savings depositor and shareholder by presenting their books for verification at once.

4-H MEMBERS SHOW THEIR APPRECIATION

Letters of appreciation have been written by many of the 4-H Clubs in Oxford County showing how the 4-H boys and girls appreciate the contribution made to make County Contest a big day for them while they were in South Paris this year. Quoted is a letter representing the letters written.

"West Bethel, Maine, October 25, 1940. To all concerned who helped to make our 4-H County Contest at South Paris a success: First of all we wish to thank Rev. R. H. Colby for the Welcome Address, and Janice Ripley of the So-Sews club for the response. We were very much pleased with the movies Mr. Edgcomb presented on "Highway Safety." I got many safety points on the proper way to ride a bicycle. I am like many other boys and girls who take any careless chances. We had a grand time singing songs which were led by Mr. Blanchard. We also want to thank our pianist for the day, Mrs. Gladys Conant. We appreciated the assistance of the South Paris Drum and Bugle Corps during our parade to the Grange Hall. Of course when we arrived at the hall we were all very hungry. The dinner was very good and at this time I wish to thank the ladies of the Grange, also to thank the Grange as a whole for the use of their hall. In the afternoon we all enjoyed the program that was put on by the Older Youth Group. Each one did his part very well. Priscilla Stearns' talk on "Her Trip to Springfield" was very interesting. I think each club member would like to have the privilege to earn a trip like that. We wish to thank Mr. Bjorkland for showing us the pictures on "National Camp." We wish to thank Mr. Kenneth Lovejoy for explaining the pictures. We enjoyed the skit put on by the So-Sews Club of South Paris. We know by the loud applause that everyone enjoyed the tap dance by Janice Lord and Patty Rolfe. They made a very cunning picture in their pretty costumes. And last, but not least, we wish to thank Burnham and Morrill Company, Norway Creamery, Hood's Creamery, Goodwin's Dairy, A. & P. Store, Titus' Market, A. W. Walker & Sons, Thayers' Market, First National Store, I. G. A. Store, Clover Farm Store, George Morton, John McKeen, Paris Hardware Co., Stone's Drug Store, Thurlow's Dairy, Paris Candy Shoppe, and W. J. Wheeler Company for furnishing our dinner.

"We also wish to thank Norway National Bank, Norway Savings Bank, South Paris Savings Bank, Casco Bank and Trust Co. for the bank awards. We are sure October 10, 1940 is a day we will remember for a long time. Sincerely yours, Ruth McNelis, Secretary of Pleasant Valley 4-H Club, West Bethel, Maine."

Others who have sent letters of appreciation and should not be forgotten are the Flying Needle 4-H Club, Busy Beavers, Eveready 4-H Club, Buckfield Busybodies, Best We Can Do 4-H Club, Merry Toilers, Mt. Pleasant, Ever Up and Coming, Bear River, Buckfield Bees, Up And a Going, Lucky Clover 4-H, Ever Onward 4-H Club, Saco Valley, So-Sew, Lake Kezar, Burnt Meadow 4-H, and the Sweet Corn Valley 4-H Club.

BETTER TO LIGHT A CANDLE

There's an old saying about the dark that takes on a new meaning now that such great darkness has descended upon the world.

"Better to light a candle," it runs, "than to rail at the dark." Better to do the small things that you and I, as women can do in our own homes—our own communities—our own towns than to sit still and moan because we can't make a speech to the whole world or help draw up the laws in Washington.

Representative democracy, like many other desirable things, begins at home. And that is where your influence is supreme, where you set the pattern and determine the atmosphere. Teach your children respect for other individuals and their opinions. Teach them the meaning of justice and tolerance and teach them discipline by insisting on obedience to reasonable authority. If this kind of teaching was given in several million homes the future of America would be assured.

And what you can do in your community. You can help to get people of all ages and outlooks and nationalities together in projects of community interest. You can learn to understand those whose background has been different from your own and thereby thwart the plans of those who hope to "divide and conquer." You can study the American way at your club meetings and read the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States.

When they come to your town, you can urge motion picture theaters to show films that dramatize the American way of life. You can encourage radio programs that unfold the great history of this country and make clear the possibilities of its future. You can go to town meetings and councils, to Parent Teacher Associations and women's club meetings.

Above all you can take your belief in democracy into the occupation of your day—a firm in your conviction of its importance as day's sunset uncertain of what the were the great women of our pioneer days who looked into each sunrise would bring except that it would carry with it another day of Freedom!

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Many an American who has been watching Europe during the past year has had his attention suddenly diverted to the Far East. At the present time, the action there, so far as we are concerned, is of a diplomatic and not of a military character. But, in the opinion of many an authority, the question of whether this country is to remain at peace or go to war will be answered in that vast Oriental land that lies some 6,000 miles away from our Pacific Coast.

We now have a very different Far Eastern policy than we had a year ago. We are taking a firm stand with Japan. Our efforts at appeasing her are apparently over. This new policy could have been forecast when the President appointed Mr. Stimson to the Cabinet. When Mr. Stimson was Secretary of State under President Hoover, he tried to effect a joint English-American policy which would have stood squarely in the way of Japanese empire-building in China. The English, however, refused to come in, and the effort failed.

There are many conflicting arguments as to whether our current policy is right or wrong, necessary or foolish. Those who support it say that if we give Japan as much as she will demand many a mile that every concession made has simply paved the way for new and stronger demands in the future. And, with England at war in Europe, we possess the only check rein that can be used against Japanese ambitions to dominate and control all Asia, and thus to establish herself as a world power equal or superior to the United States and Britain. Furthermore, they argue that we have an economic stranglehold over Japan—that if we refuse to buy from her or sell to her she will no longer be able to obtain the resources that are necessary to building an empire. And lastly, they quote naval authorities who have testified that if war comes, and fleet is pitted against fleet, we can wipe out Japan's navy in a matter of months.

On the other side are those who argue that we have no business in the Far East. Our investments there are comparatively small, and belong primarily to a few very large industries. The Philippines are, in the view of some, practically indefensible, and should be abandoned, along with Guam and other lesser outposts. So far as the natural resources of the Dutch East Indies are concerned, they say, we can use substitutes or find and develop other resources nearer at home. Lastly, they believe that we cannot afford to gamble that a war with Japan would entail—its would mean that our naval power would be concentrated in the Pacific, almost half a world away from our shores, thus leaving the Atlantic coast undefended and open to attack from Europe if England collapsed.

Whether this will become a telling political issue in the short time remaining before election is still another factor. Mr. Willkie, like Mr. Roosevelt, is in favor of helping China and combating Japan. But, going by his speeches, he feels that this can be done without taking a chance on invading ourselves in a war which we might lose and which would be immensely expensive, in both dollars and materials, even if we won. Hugh Johnson, one of the leading economists, recently wrote that Mr. Roosevelt is leading a war party and Mr. Willkie a peace party, and said that in his opinion this should be the decisive issue of the campaign. It is true that some men supposedly in the know are saying that there is an even chance of us becoming actively involved in war within a few weeks, or by the end of the year at the outside. Navy Secretary Knox, on being questioned by newsmen concerning this, has simply said that he didn't know.

At any rate, we are today working hand in hand with England in the Far East. It is felt certain that Britain will throw open her great naval base at Singapore to American fighting ships if we ask it whoever controls Singapore controls India and the far-flung lifeline of the Empire. Japanese statesmen have said that they would consider American use of the use of the Singapore base a declaration of war, and that Japan would fight to prevent it. However, of late Japanese official declarations have been more moderate in tone, and some think that Japan may be slowly backing down.

One thing is almost certain—we are closer to war now than at any time since 1918. We can't go actively to war in Europe, for obvious geographical and strategic reasons. So if we do fight, it will be in the East. And, if that happened, we would be automatically at war with Germany and Italy, under the terms of the recent Axis agreement. Then a new World War, far greater in extent and purpose than the first, would at last be underway. The armor-clad figure of Mars would shadow all the earth.

The business barometers are soaring, and for the one reason: The arms drive. Hardly an industry is immune from its temporarily stimulating effects. Some economists are shaking their heads at the prospect of what will happen when the war ends. It seems inevitable that one of the greatest world depressions in history will occur then.

Daisy Hot Dish Mat An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS the flower handle of the tea-pot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubbing. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a Christmas gift or would attract attention if used to sell at a church bazaar. All the directions you need to make one are right here in the sketch.

Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

NOTE: There are directions for a hot dish mat made of cable cord in SEWING. Book 4, Books 2 and 3 also contain directions for many gifts and novelties. These booklets are a service to our readers and each contains 32 pages of illustrated directions for things to make for the home. Congress Establishes Vocational Schools to Train Farm Youth

Rural Schools to Offer Training in Mechanical Trades; Rumors Predict Roosevelt, Willkie Will Name Loser to Head Defense Board.

By BAUKHAGE

WASHINGTON.—Remember that old song: "How you going to keep 'em down on the farm, after they've seen Paree?"

Well, you're not going to be able to keep some of them down on the farm who haven't seen Paree. This time it isn't the bright lights that are calling, it's the pay envelope. Not the lure of the ladies but the lathes and riveters and stamping machines in the factories that are calling.

At least, that is what the experts here in Washington who claim they can see through a haystack without blinders prognosticate.

And Uncle Sam is helping. Most people didn't notice it but congress slipped $10,000,000 into the last deficiency bill, most of which is going toward helping the farm boy get a job in the city. The money is to be appropriated as part of the industrial defense program for "out-of-school rural and non-rural vocational schools" but the fact is that states will share in the fund, according to their farm population.

At present more than 2,500 rural vocational schools are offering instruction in vocational agriculture. These schools, if they get additional money for equipment and teaching, can provide training in auto-mechanics and other skills basic to defense industries.

City Employers Prefer Men Raised on Farm

And this isn't just a defense measure, either. We know that scarcely any city produces enough babies to keep its population even. We know that while some farm districts are overpopulated now and have been since the depression, a lot of farmers' sons will always go to the city if they can find work there. Right now defense industries need help and they prefer a man with a card that shows he has had vocational training. This doesn't mean that agricultural vocational training will be cut down but the $10,000,000, while it won't go very far, will help a lot to give the farm boy the mechanical training the city boys have been getting.

But there is another reason why more farm boys are going to get city jobs. They are preferred in a lot of industries anyhow. A farm boy makes a good factory worker, the experts tell us, if he comes from a farm where machinery has been used, because he's just that much more experienced than the city boy. Especially the tractor wheat farms of the Northwest, the corn-belt, the Mississippi South. He knows a cam from a gear, he knows what makes the wheels go round. He can transfer this "feel" he has for farm machinery to a lathe or any other simple machine.

Another thing, he's better disciplined than the city boy. On the farm Pa is the foreman. The boy is used to taking orders. Also he's used to working hard. And when he goes to the city he's likely to be steadier and more reliable than the city worker.

Defense Commission Post in Doubt

There is an interesting rumor chasing itself around the lamp-posts on Pennsylvania avenue these days. It's one of those wish-fathered thoughts but it's worth repeating over anybody's back fence. This is the way it goes:

"If Roosevelt is elected he's going to make Wendell Willkie chairman of the defense commission. If Willkie is elected he's going to name Franklin Delano Roosevelt for the job."

Such a consummation might do more to unify the defense program than any other single thing.

At present there isn't any chairman of the commission. When Mr. Knudsen, head of the production unit of the group, has a problem that involves national policy he has to put on his hat and walk over to the White House, or else call National 1414 and ask to speak to one Franklin Delano Roosevelt, for he's the boss.

The same thing applies to the heads of the other units. As a matter of record there has been no public criticism on the part of the defense commissioners about the arrangement but some people feel that it would be a wonderful thing as far as public opinion goes, if the next President, whoever he may be after next January, picks his erstwhile political opponent as head of our gigantic effort to ring America with an impenetrable wall of wings and ships and men.

U. S. May Lack President in January

As a matter of fact when inauguration day rolls around there actually may not be any President to inaugurate.

At least that's what some of the prophets of gloom on Capitol Hill are predicting will happen if the November election should be very close.

This is what the worrying ones say:

"When the Lame Duck amendment to the Constitution was written and inauguration day and the convening of the new congress were moved back from March to January, Senator Norris and everybody else thought our troubles were over. We all agreed it was wonderful to get rid of the painful sight of lame ducks limping around the political barnyard. It was a waste of time, often with a defeated President still in the White House, always with some defeated congressman who really didn't represent anybody, sitting in the Capitol until the March following the November elections.

"That's all very well under ordinary circumstances, that is when we don't have a close election. But suppose we do have a real close election this year. Congress meets on January 3. The brand new congress. It has to organize, elect a speaker and be ready for the joint session with the senate three days later because that's when the electoral vote is counted. And until the vote is counted and approved by the whole of congress the results of the election are not official.

"Usually this ceremony is just an empty form—unlocking the specially made box, taking out the beautifully engrossed certificates from each state signed by the proper officials and reading off the score that everybody has known since election day. But suppose the vote is close and there are charges of fraud and the side which makes the charges has enough votes in the house to demand a recount?"

Close Election Would Necessitate Recount

"The law says that if the electors can't decide on the President that the Vice President with the most votes has to take over the presidency in the interim. But it would be quite likely that if one candidate's vote was questioned his running mate's would be, too. So who would be President then?"

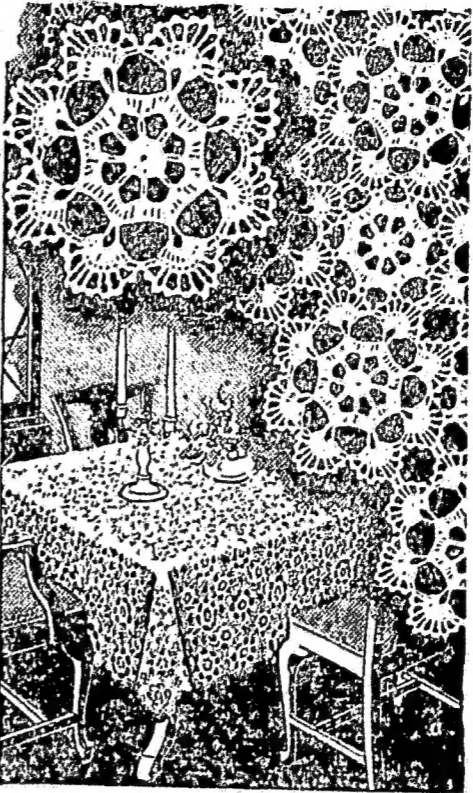

This is the problem as some of the legislators see it. They point out that if fraud were approved in a single precinct in a single state, it might change the electoral vote of that state and so the outcome of the election. Meanwhile, an investigation might drag out weeks.

Of course this isn't likely to happen but at least it provides something for congress and the country to worry about and take their minds off the war. And it could happen.

In the famous case of President Hayes the vote was protested and it took a nine-man commission to settle it. Congress selected three members of the Supreme court, three senators and three representatives to do it. Their task was considerably expedited, however, since they had a pro-Hayes majority and simply threw out all the electoral votes challenged by the other side.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew! Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

THE WAR:
Aerial

There were rumors and counter-rumors about the total evacuation of London, in the face of Goering's aerial bombardment. Old people over 65, school children, and active mothers were advised to leave as soon as possible, taking with them all sick or invalided souls.

About half a million children—more than 50 per cent of the school population—were out of town, and 500 expectant mothers were departing weekly for parts unknown. It was not a cheerful picture. The British government still refused to leave, although an emergency parliament house had been prepared in readiness, at Cheltenham, in the extreme west of England. The board of trade already had announced the removal of its business office records to the Grand hotel, in an underground vaulting at central Waterloo. The board of trade, however, had not yet decided whether to remove its records to the Grand hotel or to the Admiralty.

Regarded as the most important of the war, the British government had not yet decided whether to remove its records to the Grand hotel or to the Admiralty.

When the British government had not yet decided whether to remove its records to the Grand hotel or to the Admiralty, the British government had not yet decided whether to remove its records to the Grand hotel or to the Admiralty.

Disease

The worst news of all was the fatal meningitis that broken out. This was due to the fact that nearly 1,000,000 people had been sleeping in unsanitary conditions. Nerves were wearing out, and no was physical resistance, with an average of only four hours' sleep per night. The "cerebrospinal fever" was blamed on a nose and throat germ, presumably airborne. There was further danger of typhoid, influenza, a higher insanity rate, and other attendant ills. It will be remembered that epidemic disease is one of the four grim horses of the apocalypse, and perhaps the worst of the grisly team.

The Balks

When it came to the Balkans, there was increased tension. Rumania was further occupied by the German invaders. Bulgaria headed straight for the Axis orbit, while British citizens began to decamp from both Bucharest and Sofia. Yugoslavia, squeezed between Italy, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Italian Albania, signed a new trade and political pact with Hitler, which tied up the Yugoslavs in the German continental system, at least for the time being. Greece was threatened by the Bulgarians and Italians, and was backed up by Russia and Turkey. Greece and Turkey, along with Egypt and Portugal, were still nominal British allies. The Soviets were moving increasingly to the anti-Hitler viewpoint, for a Germanized Balkans did not appeal to the Kremlin at Moscow. The actual military value of the Red army was under constant discussion. Had it found itself, in the last month of the Finnish war? Was the Red aviation any good? Were there any suitable Red generals left alive after Stalin's purges? These were the moot questions, and even the left-eye monovices of the Prussian general staff were in some doubt about Marshal Voroshilov's warbirds and warboys.

Reported demands upon Greece by the Axis powers included: (1) immediate severance of economic relations with the British, (2) cession of territory to Italy and Bulgaria, (3) use of Greek air bases by the Axis, (4) abdication of King George of Greece, (5) grant of a right of way to Italy for construction of a major military road.

DOUBT:

Espana

When it came to Spain, Generalissimo Franco, was still in much doubt, Gibraltar or no Gibraltar. Heinrich Himmler went down to see Franco. Himmler is the head of the dread Nazi Gestapo, and his agents were very useful to Franco in the long Spanish civil war. Himmler got a big hand in the peninsula, except for the ex-loyalists still left alive, who hated this too-able German fanatic.

POLITICS:

Wind Up

As the politicians all over the nation were busy winding up their bluffs of campaign oratory, American voters were preparing to go to the polls to cast what was expected to be the biggest ballot in the nation's history. Major candidates were completing their plans to the electorate and later public opinion polls indicated a close presidential race.

On Mr. R.

Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt did not try to predict the result of the 1940 campaign, which was coming to a peak. She said she simply didn't know, and implied she could take it or leave it.

Said Mrs. Roosevelt, who is popular even with the foes of her husband: "As far as the polls go, they mean very little to me. They are so often too much one way, or the other. When you've been the wife of a politician long enough, you learn not to express anything one way or the other, but just go along and see what happens . . ."

Duello

Meanwhile, Clare Boothe and Dorothy Thompson disagreed on the election. Miss Boothe wrote "The Women" and other things. She stood firm for Willkie. Miss Thompson, N. Y. Herald Tribune or no N. Y. Herald Tribune, plumped for Roosevelt. Miss Boothe razed Miss Thompson, and the Herald Tribune held up Miss Thompson's stuff. There was quite a to-do about it all, with Miss Boothe apparently worsting Miss Thompson in this blitzkrieg of hairpins and cat-calls.

DEFENSE:

Draftees

Thirty thousand draftees were to be put into the army by November 15, and another 200,000 by June 15. There had been a total of 17,000,000 young men that registered, which topped the 1930s. In reference to these young men, War Secretary Stimson declared: "Only God and Hitler know what will happen to the United States." The army, it was stated, plans to train 300,000 annually for the next five years, enough to meet the needs of the British-Wadsworth corporation had recently passed by congress. The B.W.

bill provided that an annual 900,000 was to be the maximum number called up per year.

Western

One southwestern Indian was found who claimed to be a member of the German Bund, and didn't want to register. He said he was waiting for Hitler to come and "free" him from the white man, the White House, and the great white father. Some people said that this aborigine was red in more ways than one.

A. C. L. U.:

'Reforms'

The American Civil Liberties union used to be called radical. It defied Communists, Nazis, Negroes, trade unions and other varied causes, which was certainly an American way of doing things, but its leaders were sometimes accused of leftist tendencies.

Eleven new members were added to the national committee of the A. C. L. U. They were certainly of an orthodox, and even conservative, type. The new members included Mr. Roosevelt's headmaster of aristocratic Groton school, Dr. Endicott Peabody. Also, interventionist Robert Sherwood, the famous playwright. Van Wyck Brooks, the blue-blooded author and critic, was another, and so was Pearl Buck, the "Chinese" novelist. Dean Christian Gauss of conservative Princeton university was on the list, and Dr. Frank Kingdon, director of the citizenship educational service. Also, William Draper Lewis of Philadelphia, director of the American law institute, William Allan Neilson, president emeritus of Smith college for women, Bishop Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist church in Boston, and Professor Sophonisba Breckinridge of the University of Chicago.

NATIONAL:

Socialism

Certain gloomy political scientists were maintaining that the blight of national socialism was spreading round the world to all the major countries: Germany, Italy, England, France, Japan, America, etc. In each country, they declared, it varied its pattern, but the basic essentials were always there.

Sad

They said that national socialism now combined the aggressive militarism of the political right with the aggressive socialism of the political left. This united left and right, and made for some sort of totalitarian state. The Churchill government, for example, united radical labor under Ernest Bevin with the military mentality of Churchill himself. Chamberlain, they claimed, represented the last stand of Victorian middle class capitalism. The Vargas dictatorship in Brazil, the Franco rule in Spain, and the Kasey regime in Japan—militarized and anti-capitalist—were additional samples. In France, the generals and admirals were dominant at Vichy—Petain, Weygand, Darlan, etc.—and "pilotage" was severely condemned by the Gallic national socialists, who thirsted for the blood of Rothschilds and so-called profiteers.

LEOPOLD:

The Belgic

King Leopold of Belgium was accused last June of grave military treachery in the Flanders campaign. They said he let the British and French troops down by making that initial separate peace. France revoked his legion of honor decoration, and the Leopoldine bust was removed from the Belgium pavilion at the New York World's fair. Then, months later, people began to renovate their opinions about Leopold of the Belgians. The Petain government of France restored his legion of honor. The marble Leopoldine bust was restored to the World's fair exhibit. Some 700 people were specially invited to the bustial restoration. The pavilion had been open only two weeks when Leo made his peace with the Hitlerians. The weary months since that time have meant seclusion—for the monarch—in a guarded Belgian chateau, where he rules vaguely and in name only.

NAZIS:

Explanation

The three "nastiest" papers in Germany are Dr. Goebbels' Angriff in Berlin, the anti-semitic Stuermer of Julius Streicher in Nuremberg, and the official organ of the black-uniformed Hitler guards: the Schwarze Korps. The Schwarze Korps gave the following "scientific" explanation of the heroic defense of London:

"London's ability to carry on under a continuous hail of bombs, amid seething wreckage and raging flames, without a roof over the heads of people, without sleep and with the slenderest food supplies, is not due to British ability to 'take it' or proverbial toughness.

"Rather, this England approaches death with sensual pleasure and smacks its lips over every phase and bears every humiliation and every cynicism if only it can hope that in dying it may also drag its enemy into the abyss. The psychopath knows that in such cases pleasure in self-destruction parallels pleasure in self-destruction.

"Thus is solved the puzzle of British toughness and endurance."

SNITE:

Iron Lunged

About the bravest young man in America is Fred Snite Jr. of Chicago. He has lived for four years in an iron lung, and has traveled in it to distant places. He has married happily and now has an heir. Snite wanted to register for the draft, with his customary pluck and grit.

They appointed Snite senior as a special registrar, and the father registered the son. Snite junior answered all the usual questions like any other draftee. When his adoring father asked him for "other obvious physical characteristics," Fred answered "infantile paralysis, unable to walk." This action made Snite Jr. more popular than ever.

Aircraft Award

In recognition of his "contributions at aeronautical development and the production of many types of aircraft of high performance," Glenn L. Martin (above), president of the aircraft company that bears his name, has been awarded the Daniel Guggenheim medal for 1940. Mr. Martin, shown in his Baltimore office with a model of the first airplane he ever built and in which he learned to fly, is currently working on two new bombing planes, said to be the largest aircraft of their kind in the world. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NAMES in the news . . .

Old Marshal Petain was warned by his fellow politician, Marcel Deat, against any attempt to restore the monarchy in la France. The so-called count of Paris, Henry VI, is the candidate, a funny looking little creature. Petain himself would make a better king, if any. The duke of Guise, father of the present pretender, died in Morocco last August. So much for him.

Al Smith, Uram Johnson of California, ex-Candidate John Davis, and Hitler were variously reported as working for Willkie. So were former members of Woodrow Wilson's cabinet, former members of the socialist party, the isolationists, and William Allen White's committee for intervention. The New York Daily News and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, both strongly isolationist-minded, came out—none the less—for Roosevelt. So did the paradoxically named Springfield Republican. Anti-Tammany LaGuardia and the pro-Tammany tigers worked for Roosevelt in N. Y., side by side. It was all very peculiar.

The earl of Athlone and his wife, Princess Alice, visited Mr. Roosevelt at Hyde Park. They conferred on aid for England, "informally." The earl is dowager Queen Mary's brother, and an ardent Buchananite convert. He is a nice old military man, and his wife is a nice old female ditto.

Ralph Hope, British flying officer, was a nephew of Neville Chamberlain. He was killed in an aerial action over England. Three weeks earlier he had been shot down, but escaped safely. The loss was reported as a heavy personal loss to the man of Munich.

Once, I Could Vote, Too!

Once, like you, I was a free man! A Frenchman!

Politicians made speeches to me, too!

They spoke about our impregnable democracy.

They told me what they were doing to protect my standard of living and my working conditions.

They promised my family safety through preparedness.

But they weren't honest with me! They let me down!

I found that out when I had to give up my job and go to war—at the same time that I found out you couldn't stop tanks with bodies, that you couldn't halt bombs or buy peace with promises.

Now they are holding trials to find out whose fault it was. But I know—

It was MY fault!

I voted for the easy way.

I voted for the beguiling voice.

I voted for the politician, not the man.

I was one of a nation of free men who did not prize freedom. Today I am not free.

I repeat, it was my fault. But it was I who paid the penalty. I, with my womenfolk and my children! I, who thought I was prepared for war.

Free men of America, already you may be pledged to a conflict for which you know you are not prepared!

Remember my mistake! Weigh the man against the politician before you vote.

Do not vote for a voice—VOTE FOR A MAN.

Do not vote for a politician—VOTE FOR A MAN WHO WORKED WITH HIS HANDS.

Do not vote for the easy way—VOTE FOR A MAN WHO CAME UP THE HARD WAY.

1940 Call for Red Cross Recruits

The 1940 Poster of The American Red Cross sounds the call to the nation to serve humanity within the ranks of this army of mercy.

KEEPING step with the boys called to the colors in America's new defense army and navy, will be the American Red Cross, fulfilling its mission of service to the men in the line and to their loved ones at home. Chairman Norman H. Davis announced in Washington.

"Several thousand Red Cross nurses already have been called to the colors," Mr. Davis said, "and Red Cross field directors, and thousands of Red Cross workers in chapters throughout the nation, are ready to help America's soldiers and sailors with personal problems, just as in the 1917-18 World War period."

"Every patriotic man and woman in the United States, who wants to do his or her share in upholding the national defense of our nation, can do so by sharing in the vitally important work of the Red Cross. Join as a member of the local Chapter, during the roll call, November 11 to 30, and through your support you will strengthen the Red Cross army of mercy."

"Recruits are needed not alone as members, but also as volunteer workers in the Red Cross Chapters."

Red Cross work will continue undiminished in its usual domestic program of relief in disaster; community public health nursing; safety education and promotion of the Junior Red Cross. An individual membership supports all of this work, not only in Red Cross Chapters, but in the nation. Relief to war victims in Europe is financed by the $20,000,000 war relief fund contributed by the public during the summer of 1940.
